Police Chiefs Award Prestigious Joe Molloy Award to Ripon Police Chief Richard Bull

The California Police Chiefs Association awarded its most prestigious award, the Joe Molloy Award, to Ripon Police Chief Richard Bull March 3rd at the President's luncheon in Pasadena, during their 32nd Annual Training Symposium. CPCA Outgoing-President Jerry Dyer, chief of police in Fresno, presented Chief Bull with the award for his dedication and service to law enforcement and to the California Police Chiefs Association. This award embodies the characteristics represented by the late Chief Joe Molloy of Anaheim, of professionalism, leadership, energy, and commitment to the mission of the Association.

Chief Dyer said the selection of Chief Richard Bull to receive this award was an easy one to make. "Chief Bull has tirelessly served the association in several capacities and currently serves as the chair of our Technology Committee and also chairs our Data Sharing Task Force. He was a key planner of last year's successful Technology Conference. In addition, he created a technology survey that was forwarded to each chiefs and sheriff's department in the state to ascertain what type of CAD and records management systems agencies were using and what other platforms were being used to assist the Data Sharing Task Force in developing statewide standards for data sharing," explained Chief Dyer. "I was honored to present Chief Bull with the award for the work he has done for Cal Chiefs and for law enforcement."

The California Police Chiefs Association represents the state's municipal police chiefs whose agencies protect over 78 percent of the citizens of California.
